SELLS MICE FOR A LIVING.

A Woman Whose Clients include Some of Europe's Great Doctors.

Verily one half of the world does not know how the other half lives. Equally true is it that that never before were there so many curious ways of making a living as there are at present.
There have been physicians in Paris for several centuries, but it is only recently that one of them thought it necessary to make a contract by the terms of which they are to receive a certain number of mice during the year. The general public was rather surprised when it heard of this contract, for the reason that the physicians who act in this matter as a committee of the faculty of medicine, agree to pay a good price for the mice, whereas there are many persons in Paris who would be only too glad to make the mice the prey of their ravenous little animals. The physicians, however, know what they are doing. They don't want ordinary, everyday mice. Only cultured, well fed, dainty mice will suit them, and they have given the contract to Mlle. Alexandre, who is the only person in Paris who can supply on demand any number of such desirable animals.

Yes, Mlle. Alexandre's business in life is to furnish mice to Biche, Chanteuse and several other leading specialists in Paris and elsewhere. She also keeps rabbits and guinea-pigs, but mice are her specialty. It is fifteen years since she first began to supply animals to the Pasteur Institute, the municipal laboratory, and several other such places. She has hardly any competitors and she has no orders to fill.

She feeds her mice exclusively on bread and milk. He clients insist that the animals must be white and plump. The feline diet diet the best for them. When they are three months old they are ready for the doctor, and she seldom has any on hand.

She also disposes of these hapless victims, not only to her regular clients in Paris, but also to several persons in London and elsewhere. No gentleman would be able to stand a long journey, and they are as fresh when they arrive in London as they were when they left Paris.

Madam is never short of mice. At present she has about a thousand on hand, and as these animals multiply so rapidly she will have double that number in an incredibly short time. --New York Herald.

Dungoon in a College.
The authorities recently decided to remodel Appleton hall, one of the dormitories of the college. The grounds and the workmen have begun operations. When the work was done of tearing out the interior of the building, was found a dungoon, and so were the faculty, to find themselves building a subterranean business, which they did not expect. It was never known, had been forgotten and left undisturbed for many years. In this basement, at one end of the building, was found a dungoon, cell, or cave, fitted up in a most terrifying manner. Its walls were lined with black, no light could penetrate it, and in this vault was a grotesque array of skulls and skeletons, and stranger of all a coffin. The only visible entrance to this place was a narrow crack between the door of the building, and which was secretly connected with closets in the rooms of the various students of the building. Opinion is greatly divided as to the dark deeds which have been transacted in this gloomy cell. Some think that it was a place of horror, visited by the famous Phi Chi hazing society of Long K. E., whose mystic initiation ritual is said to have many terrors in its years past. --Correspondence Boston Herald.

A Ring Out of a Single Diamond.
A ring recently exhibited at Antwerp was the admiration of diamond cutters and merchants because it was the first successful attempt at cutting a ring out of a single stone. There are a great many difficulties in the method of cutting diamonds, and the stone is a certain cleavage and particular veins, all of which have to be carefully studied in order to prevent splitting and in this vault was a grotesque array of skulls and skeletons, and stranger of all a coffin. The only visible entrance to this place was a narrow crack between the door of the building, and which was secretly connected with closets in the rooms of the various students of the building. Opinion is greatly divided as to the dark deeds which have been transacted in this gloomy cell. Some think that it was a place of horror, visited by the famous Phi Chi hazing society of Long K. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

He Has Been Designated as Heir to the Throne.

It is sometimes amusing to notice how far some people allow their prejudices to carry them, to see how trivial a pretext may be made the ground of quarrel for some people to dislike a thing, especially if they want to. This is well illustrated in the case of a writer in a New York paper who chooses to give vent to the most vulgar prejudices by scoring the Prince of Wales on his gracefulness and etiquette. He says the Prince is a boor because he is a booby, he is too fat to give the particulars of one instance in which a snub was given to the Princess. "Miss Chamberlain, a Kentucky girl, lost her place of honor with the Prince," he says, because she said to him in the merest fun when at a society dinner, "Jumbo, you eat too much." Surely such rudeness as that could not be expected to obtain at a society function. The Prince would not be the gentleman he is did he not respect his own criticism.

Mrs. Langtry ruined her fortunes with his royal highness by slipping a piece of ice down his back." The New York critic seems to think that the Prince ought to accept all these selections of politeness in good part. But in so doing he exposes his own ignorance or prejudice, for no gentleman would be so much as to take any notice of such liberties. He charges the Prince with sensuality, and yet in the same paragraph goes on to say that Mrs. Langtry, whose form was the most calculated to arouse the sensual in man of any in England, charged the Prince all the time of his courtship with attempts to gain an entrance into his more intimate society. These and other instances are given to show that the idea of the Prince of Wales being "the first gentleman in Europe" is all "tommyrot."

Fair criticism must always be accepted, but when a man is so much as to discover a flaw, and then when he thinks he has found it, sets to work to expose it, giving as evidence, discourses which to the writer of the article prove the very contrary to his position, we are inclined to sympathize with one who is so blinded by prejudice as not to be capable of seeing anything but the objectionable in those who happen to be the subjects of his prejudices. The Prince of Wales is generally conceded to be a gentleman in the best sense of the term, and however much we may approve or disapprove of British policy, we are glad to be able to distinguish between the personal qualities of him who is universally acknowledged to be "the first gentleman in Europe."

A MARVEL OF POLITICS.
How General Platt Has Triumphed
Over Scandal and Dislike.

There has never been anything more remarkable in the history of our politics, save a well-known writer, than Platt's return to power in New York and in the country. He survived the faux pas which killed Garfield, ruined Cleveland, and sent Blaine from the White House, and caused such a great upheaval in the politics of the country. He rose above personal vendettas and legislative scandals at Albany which would have ruined almost any other man. He has more than once been named as a man of high character, and as a politician he has often risked everything upon the turn of a card.

An Endless Specialist's Office.

Some people are always going to the doctor's and are never well. A large portion of their income goes for doctor's advice and medicines that do no good.

Health is a vital one but the diseases that ruin lives are the chronic ones. The local practitioner is wholly unable to cope with them.

For all such disorders, for all such diseases arising out of the blood and nerves, the remedies discovered by Dr. Greene, of 34 Temple place, Boston, Mass., one of whose discoveries is the world famous Nervura, provide the cure.

These remedies are so uniformly successful that they demonstrate themselves to be what they really are, the provision made by nature for the cure of such diseases.

This great specialist discovered them after years of search and practice, and they have brought health to thousands.

Dr. Greene charges nothing for consultation and gives his advice, which is the advice of his great experience also, absolutely free. Every person rich or poor, old or young, consult him, either personal or by letter.

The consultation inspires hope and he treatment cures.

Old People

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alternative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding Nature in the performance of the functions.

Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old People find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at Morrison's Drug Store.

Past Verlaine

Verlaine is the master of lyric expression, using every delicate means in order to express every shadow of his sentiment and to excite by harmonious sounds the nervous strings of the modern, impressionable listener. That is why the "young ones" considered him their leader and why he was called the first symbolist. The melodious, suggestive words, the strange, symbolic pictures, arose in the soul of the reader as the impression which the poet wished to give him. "Il pleure dans mon cœur, comme il pleure sur la ville," says the poet, and the use of assonance and alliteration ("pleure," "pleure") gives to the lines pleasing harmony and to the picture charm and color. To move the sensitive soul of the listener by the music of the rhyme, such is Verlaine's aim.

When Leconte de Lisle died, one of the Parisian reviews called the literary and artistic who, after the author of "Poèmes Barbares," was worthy to take up the national lyre. The votes were all for Verlaine. The public of the boulevard was astonished at such an artistic plebiscite. The new poet laureate was so little known. Nevertheless many lovers of poetry loved and admired him. But how many lovers of poetry are there?

Past Verlaine died Jan. 8, 1896, and was buried two days later in the cemetery. All the artistic and literary youth of Paris followed his coffin. Several eminent literary spoke at his grave. Verlaine never called himself with a falsehood, nor did he humiliate himself by seeking the applause of the multitude. His lyre was for the soul—M. S. C. de Solismis in Forum.
